Destiny's Child, Not What You See

No life so short it cant turn around

You cant spend your life living underground

Far from above you dont hear a sound

And Im out here - waiting

I dont understand what you want me to be

Its the dark youre hating

Its not who I am, but I know that its all that you see

No life so short that it never learns

No flame so small that it never burns

No page so sure that it never turns

And Im out here - waiting

I dont understand what you want me to be

Its the dark youre hating

Its not who I am, but I know that its all that you see

Can you live your life in a day?

Putting every moment in play?

Never hear a word that they say as the wheels go around

Tell me if you win would it show?

In a thousand years who would know?

As a million lifes come and go on the same piece of ground

Ive been waiting

I dont understand what you want me to be

Its the dark youre hating

Its not who I m, but it is what you see

Tell me would you really want to See me leave this night without you?

Dont you ever look about you?

Wandering where we might be?

New York is so far away now

Tokio, Berlin and Moscow

Only dreams from here but somehow

One day that world we will see

I dont understand (8x)

I swear on tomorrow if you take this chance

Our lifes are this moment, the music, the dance

And here in this labyrinth of lost mysteries

I close my eyes on this night

And youre all that I see

Youre all that I see
