

Dexter Freebish, Heavy

Telephone, sounds like a siren
Hear your voice, it's like an earthquake
Far from home again
Adrift in my world

Well the years that I knew you
Were the heaviest by far
And there's things that I outgrew
But never got resolved

Words rained down, felt like a bomb blast
World caved in, buried in regret
Swept away again
Only to return

Well the years that I knew you
Were the heaviest by far
And there's things that I outgrew
But never got resolved

Two worlds collide
But can we live this lie
The farther away I fly
You know I still can't hide

Because the years that I knew you
Were the heaviest by far
And there's things that I outgrew
But never got resolved

Yeah the fears that I once knew
Appear like yesterday
And the walls that I once raised
Grow higher every day
Well the years that I knew you
Were the heaviest by far
