Diana Krall, Why Should I Care

Was there something more i could have done? Or was i not meant to be the one? Where's the life i thought we would share? And should i care? And will someone else get more of you? Will she go to sleep more sure of you? Will she wake up knowing you're still there? And why should i care? There's always one to turn and walk away And one who just wants to stay But who said that love is always fair? And why should i care? Should i leave you alone here in the dark? Holding my broken heart While a promise still hangs in the air Why should i care?
