

Dianne Reeves, Hello, Haven't I Seen You Before

Look at him standing there
All alone in the room
It's getting late where's his date
Could it be he came alone
Elegant, confident, bad as can be
If only I could figure why I'm having so much trouble saying

Hello haven't I seen you before
Just thought I'd say that I want your company
A rendezvous for two just me and you
C'mon baby talk to me

Wish I could tell him what's on my mind
What's wrong with me

I looked away just to say
Goodnight to a friend
I turned around but only found
Someone else where he had been
Mad about losing you
So I headed for the door
If only I could figure out why
He met me on the way and whispered

Hello haven't I seen you before
Just though I'd say that I want your company
A rendezvous for two just me and you
C'mon baby talk to me
Ooh baby talk to me
Will you just talk to me
