Disturbed, Parasite

You've got nowhere to hide
And all bullshit aside
You've committed a terrible crime
You've stepped over the line and
You'd better be running for your life
Fucked over again
I even called you a friend
A mistake I won't be repeating
I just don't understand
How you even continue to deny

You know why (Do you remember why) Don't you pretend that you don't know why (You Fucking Parasite)

Because your living through association Has been getting you high You'd sell your soul For just a taste of the life

Now what a surprise, to discover the lies You'll be telling again in no time You just don't realize they'll come back And be fucking up your life In trouble again, I just don't understand This whole pattern that keeps repeating You know you'll do it again And admit you can step into the light

You know why (Do you remember why) Don't you pretend that you don't know why (You Fucking Parasite)

Because your living through association Has been getting you high You'd sell your soul For just a taste of the life

Determination, has been running on high No control, for just a taste of the life

Because your association Has been getting you high You'd sell your soul For just a taste of the life

Determination has been running on high No control, for just a taste of the life

For just a taste of the life

You've got nowhere to hide
And all bullshit aside
You've committed a terrible crime
You've stepped over the line and
You'd better be running for your life