

Dogma, Unsaid

All the years that fade away still seem like yesterday
I go back and try to see with the eyes I have today
And I live with all you've done
And I breathe who you are
I can never feel alone with all that I carry

And all the times that seemed unnoticed
Silently changed me into a man
And all the things you've tried to teach me
They're more than just memories, they're now who I am

But somehow I always leave something unsaid
Oh how I love you, you're my dearest friend, ooh

Like a cool summer breeze, takes my mind and sets it free
I can always be at ease, so much of you is part of me
And I reach out from where I stand
A lifetime apart, I see your hands
And I grasp to understand but it still takes years

And all the times that seemed unnoticed
Silently changed me into a man
And all the things you've tried to teach me, yeah
They're more than just memories, they're now who I am

But somehow I always leave something unsaid
But somehow I always leave something unsaid
Well somehow I always leave something unsaid
Oh how I love you, you're my dearest friend, yeah
Oh how I love you, you're my dearest friend
Well maybe somethings don't have to be said

"Change is happening right now..."

"He was succesful, partly because of a clever deception..."