

Dogwood, Comes Crashing

It's picking time
Time for me to leave and walk away from us
My feet are tired
Too tired to carry both of us through this again

On into nothing
Out in the open
I say goodbye in faith
I'll wait

Surrender your pain
Lay down your love
When I come back
And it all comes crashing down

The end of your world
Is closer than you think

My shattered heart
Is stained with memories of how life was to be
When giving hurt
The sacrifices made Were not enough for me

I'm coming back to rectify
All the pain I caused you
Don't shield your eyes
Face tomorrow on your own

Failure to reason
Endless confusion
The unanswered question
Is why you're on my mind?

Surrender your pain
Lay down your love
When I come back
And it all comes crashing down

The end of your world
Is closer than you think

Incomplete without want
Want is what I know that I can't have Left alone to argue
The only argument that I can win

Yesterday has past you
That day that we thought we had
Incomplete without you
I want you to know

Surrender your pain
Lay down your love
When I come back
And it all comes crashing down

The end of your world
Is closer than you think

The end of your world
Is closer than you
Closer than you
Closer than you think