

Dogwood, Patriotic Pride

And the rockets red glare will be nothing compared to the light that will shine on the day
Millions of souls will be stolen
For all the right reasons and you'll hear all the old people say

Look what I said would happen came true
That's the difference between me and you
To God I stayed true, you let the world conquer you
You said that we, we are all the...

Seven years of hell, my friend I wish you well
In a trial which you'll have to survive
And in the end, it will happen again
So this time I suggest that you don't run and hide

Look up into the pitch black sky
I look down upon you with new eyes
Don't hold back your choice, take a stand, speak your voice
The world's but a thorn in your side

Look what I said would happen came true
That's the difference between me and you
To God I stayed true, you let the world conquer you
And you said that we, we are all the same
