Dolly Parton, Heart Door

HEART DOOR WITH PAULA COLE WRITER PAULA COLE

There is a diamond inside of me that lights up the sky of my soul Where fell the diamond when I believed that all of the hurt was my fault

I'm opening the heart door, letting in the light Opening the heart door and giving life to me that died

You ended up so with that person who comes home too late from the bar I ended up so when my courage could finally walk on its own When I finally opened the door

I'm opening the heart door, letting in the light Opening the heart door and giving life to me that died

You ended up so with that person who comes home too late from the bar I ended up so when my courage could finally walk on its own When I finally opened the heart door