Don Williams, Such A Lovely Lady

Last night I came home and found you there You with your pretty eyes and shining hair Look at you, you're the kind of woman men stop and stare Such a lovely lady to be mine Such a lovely lady should be somewhere else it seems to me, the likes of me, isn't hard to find Sometimes going home, though it's not fair I stop and have a drink or two, see who's there But when I do you're the kind of woman I just leave them there You're such a lovely lady to be mine Such a lovely lady should be somewhere else It seems to me, the likes of me, isn't hard to find Last night I came home and found you there You with your pretty eyes and shining hair Look at you, the kind of woman men stop and stare You're such a lovely lady to be mine Such a lovely lady to be mine
