Dot Allison, You Can Be Replaced

We took all the laws And threw them away We're the only ones Who saw the call may-day Held by the throat With the backs against the wall The bottom looks like up When you have got the ball We are your rivals We're the survivors I'm not phased You can be replaced You've got the power To give your cluelessness a voice Saying loads of nothing With a lot of noise Walk down the street Resentment in your arms There's somthing free in us That you despise We are your rivals We're the survivors I'm not phased You can be replaced We are your rivals We're the survivors I'm not phased You can be replaced
