

Downhere, Hope Is Rising

I've lost all my earthly optimism
That it's all going to be alright
That the good will win this fight Somewhere between youth and disappointments
the dream became despair,
the love became a lie

Just now, I've reached the end of my line
Just now, I'm too tired to keep on trying

Hope is rising,
it's a sunrise for the end
Hope is rising,
and it's breathing for me again
Hope is rising again

Soon beneath the roses I will lie
All the memories of my days, gathered to the sky Soon every work will find its worth And all my strength returned, to the water and the earth

Just when I reach the end of my life Just when my eyes dim out the last light

From the sorrow, from the fear
From the loss and from the tears
From the darkness, from the pain
From the fall and from the grave
