Dream Theater, Endless Sacrifice

Cold Lying in my bed Staring into darkness

Lost I hear footsteps overhead And my thoughts return Again

Like a child who's run away And won't be coming back Time keeps passing by As night turns into day

I'm so far away And so alone I need to see your face To keep me sane To make me whole

Try to stay alive
Until I hear your voice
I'm gonna lose my mind
Someone tell me why
I chose this life
This superficial lie
Constant compromise
Endless sacrifice

Pain
It saddens me to know
The helplessness you feel
Your light
Shines on my soul
While a thousand candles
Burn

Outside this barren room The rain is pouring down The emptiness inside Is growing deeper still

You're so far away And so alone You long for love's embrace To keep you sane To make you whole

Try to stay alive
Until I hear your voice
I'm gonna lose my mind
Someone tell me why
I chose this life
This superficial lie
Constant compromise
Endless sacrifice

Moments wasted Isolated Time escaping Endless sacrifice

Moments wasted Isolated

Time escaping Endless sacrifice

Over the distance We try to make sense Of surviving together While living apart

Striving for balance We rise to the challenge Of staying connected In spite of circumstance

All you've forsaken And all that you've done So that I could live out This undying dream

Won't be forgotten Or taken for granted I'll always remember Your endless sacrifice

Moments wasted Isolated Time escaping Endless sacrifice

Moments wasted Isolated Time escaping Endless sacrifice