

Edda, Heart

Soon son you'll understand the things that
I said to teach you wrong and right
Through your years I can only hope for you
A richer happy on your mind

Someday son when you need my words
But I can't be there for you
Take your box of lessons learned
And make your dreams come true

Between reaching for the stars in the sky
Your bound to missing once in a while
It's not if you loose or win the game
It's a word you choose for the sake of a smile

What you can see's only part of the man
Best can only come from within you
Bigger your heart the better you win
Trust the part that comes from within

Stand against your fears and give Them one last chance to fight
Brave the storms of life before your
Too old to enjoy the night

Doors to where you want to be
Will open once, you know
It's not your size that gives the strength
Your heart can steal the show

Between reaching for the stars in the sky
Your bound to missing once in a while
It's not if you loose or win the game
It's a word you choose for the sake of a smile

What you can see's only part of the man
Best can only come from within you
Bigger your heart the better you win
Trust the part that comes from within

What you can see's only part of the man
Best can only come from within you
Bigger your heart the better you win
Trust the part that comes from within

What you can see's only part of the man
Best can only come from within you
Bigger your heart the better you win
Trust the part that comes from within

What you can see's only part of the man
Best can only come from within you
Bigger your heart the better you win
Trust the part that comes from within

What you can see's only part of the man
Best can only come from within you
Bigger your heart the better you win
Trust the part that comes from within
Trust the part that comes from within
Trust the part that comes from within