

Eleni Mandell, To Dream of Sarah

Close your eyes
What she wore
What she wondered about a boy
Who would it be?
He'll never know and always wonder why
Sarah never said goodbye

Would she ride?
If you see her passing
Don't forget to ask her
Would she remember,
Believe he's waiting for her
To arrive?
Sarah never said goodbye

When hearts are young and tender
When the night is cold and he can't defend her
He swears to God that he'll never surrender
Hope to see her again

Close your eyes
To dream of Sarah
What she wondered about the stars in the sky
What she wanted
He'll never know and always wonder why
Sarah never said goodbye
