

Elisa, The Marriage (Lotus Version)

This is the marriage of silence and love here is the temple where I come to learn here are all the eternal little things that I've always loved here are all my tears just waiting for my return this the marriage of silence and love here is the land of the gentle soul here sometimes I meet the man who can see what I see and live what I dream and be the way he seems and I have no doubt, you see here I fall and rise and here I can be poor and feel so rich inside I come back to me yes, come back to see what he's doing now, what he's doing now

I believe in the marriage of silence and love I still need some patience to grasp it all I hope I won't forget these feelings fading off in time trapped behind my face, they're burning in my mind no, I have no doubt, you see here I become wise and here I can be poor and feel so rich inside

I come back to me yes, come back to see
what he's doing now, what he's doing now at first, I've lost my direction but I was just glad to be alive but then I had to meet myself and my depression and I, and I should have swallowed all my pride I just know it now, I know it now I just want to know him now see how he's doing now no, I have no doubt, you see here I live for now here I can be poor and feel so rich inside here I come back to me yes, come back to see

what he's doing now, what he's doing now
here I come back to me yes, come back to see
what he's doing now, what he's doing now

I just want to know him now