Elton John, When The Money's Gone

When the money's gone, will you be my friend Float a small row boat till the ship comes in When the winter nights chill us to the soul Will you feed the fire, spin the straw to gold When the money's gone

When the money's gone, will you get cold feet Will you still be there if the ends don't meet Till we're in the red just forget the green Take a bus with me, no more limousines When the money's gone

Will you still want me All it ever was Will you still love me, will you want me

Oh what a fine life I give to you All you ever want Will you still be there Will you pull me through when the cash don't come And if you're mine Will you still love me wherever we fall

When the money's gone

Oh will you want me baby Oh will you need me baby Oh will you love me baby When the money's gone

When the money's gone, no more caviar Will you eat fast food in a beat up car Live life modestly, lost in lotto dreams Will you find your way through it all with me Through it all with me Will you still love me All it ever was Will you still want me, will you want me

And a mile off the shore Flies a bird who'll land no more And as the tide pulls the sea So you always will pull me forever more
