Elvis Presley, What Every Woman Lives For

She may say she needs fancy bangles and beads That's part of a woman's plan But what every woman lives for What every woman lives for Is to give her love to a man

Wise men have known women can't live alone So a woman should understand That what every woman lives for What every woman lives for Is to give her love to a man

He may not be the kind you find in picture books A real life hero with dashing handsome looks He may not be the guy that you've been dreaming of But that won't stop you from giving him your love

So dear, can't you see that it was meant to be It's part, part of our destiny 'cause what every woman lives for What every woman lives for Is to give her love to a man And I hope that man is me