Emanon, More Than You Know

I hope that what I'm about to tell you really doesn't ruin Whatever we had and keep the two of us from doing the Things we used to You know just kicking it Not really specific shit, just passing the time Anyway I want to say that I'm impressed with your intellect The way you're dealing with concepts, I'm feeling it Something on the order of mind sex it's intimate And I be fiending for dialect, beginning to dilate the gates of my respect I'm giving it -- unconditional too 'Cause the person I think of first when I'm rehearsing is you You're the lady I think made me more personable Remember when I took you to the spoken word You came home saying it was the dopest shit that you ever heard In a long time and can I find more places to chill Sit back relax listen to jazz and build at I felt that, and what I'm about to say now Is that we've been kicking it long enough to figure out how We're looking at what we have between us two I trust you, sometimes when I see you I lust you I must do this to get it off of my chest Forgive me if it's taken too long to divest

I want you more than you would know So let me share with you my soul I can't explain the way it feels when you are standing next to me So if you want me let it show

But I guess, that what I really want to tell you is

Tell you is, tell you is.

Whatever you got to say I'm cool with it That doesn't mean that what I just told you I bull shitted I'm serious about it but respect if you doubt it 'Cause I know sometimes a friendship can get clouded By the hidden feelings they be concealing from one another Never tell'em the pain is swelling heavy undercover Something happens and one gets trapped in lying to another When really it's kind of silly 'cause they both want to be lovers I'm sick of contemplating the thought on Whether telling you how I feel is wrong or not wrong No amount of philosophy can answer this question It's about how I'm feeling inside, so I'm professing with pride My intentions is noble and true And that's all, there ain't much more I got to say to you And that's all, there ain't much more I got to say to you And oh yeah, there one more thing I got to say to you

I want you more than you would know So let me share with you my soul I can't explain the way it feels when you are standing next to me So if you want me let it show