

Emilie Simon, Swimming

I was swimming across the sky
Clouds and angels by my side
Then I realized that I was lonely
And it wasn't such a good thing

I was flying in Paradise
In that ocean of dead lights
I was looking for your smile in the wind
But there was nobody there this morning

I was swimming across the sky
Clouds and angels by my side
Then I realized that I was lonely
And it wasn't such a good thing

I believe in your smile every day
But I know that you're far from my way
When I talk to the moon I can hear you
In the dark I can see, I can feel your light

I was swimming across the sky
Clouds and angels by my side
Then I realized that I was lonely
And this wasn't such a good thing

I was flying in Paradise
In that ocean of dead lights
I was looking for your smile in the wind
But there was nobody there this morning

I believe in your smile every day
But I know that you're far from my way
When I talk to the moon I can hear you
In the dark I can see, I can feel your light
