Escape The Fate, Something

So now you're running It's hard to see clearly When I make you angry You're stuck in the past

And now you're screaming So can you forgive me? I've treated you badly But I am still here

Sometimes I wonder
Why I'm still waiting
Sometimes I'm shaking
That's how you make me
Sometimes I question
Why I am still here
Sometimes I think I am going crazy

Can you help me understand? And now you wish that you meant something And now you wish that you meant something to somebody else And now you wish that you met someone And now you wish that you meant something to somebody else (someone) (something to somebody else)

You look at me through clouded eyes
I know you see through my lies
See the sky, see the stars
All of this could be ours
Out of sight, out of mind
We've been through this a thousand times
Turn your back and then you make me feel so crazy

Can you help me understand?
And now you wish that you meant something
And now you wish that you meant something to somebody else
And now you wish that you met someone
And now you wish that you meant something to somebody else

You know I would wait forever Yes, I would wait (I would wait)

You know I would wait forever Yes, I would wait

And now you wish that you meant something And now you wish that you meant something to somebody else And now you wish that you met someone And now you wish that you meant something to somebody else

And I'm the one that should mean something But still you wish that you meant something to somebody else Something to somebody else, something to somebody else