

Eskobar, Home

How many times can my heart be killed
Before it dies never to return forever
How many times can I part with love
Before I turn into stone to survive it better
Before I turn into stone to survive it bitter

I need to go home
I need to go home now
I need to go home
I need to go home now

How many nights must I dream of this
Before I know I'm not better off without you
How many lives did we restore in one kiss
But we let it grow strong enough to have a breakthrough
I'm about to turn into stone to survive it better

I need to go home
I need to go home now
I need to go home
I need to go home now