

Everman, Still Waiting

I can remember you
Watching us drive away
You put your hands on your face
And you were broken by it all
I want to know the truth
You say you always thought about me
And you say you will prove
The love you have for me

But Im still waiting, Im still waiting
Im still waiting for you to be who you have promised
Waiting, I'm still waiting
I'm still waiting for you to show you love me

There were some happy days
We laughed, we talked, we played together
But the time spent in between
Was way too long
Why am I so amazed
Whenever I dont hear from you
The truth is youre the same
As youve always been

Its hard to believe you have to prove it
But when you ignore something you lose it
So dont be surprised to find that Im already gone

I dont want to hear you say
That you never meant to hurt me
Because you did
And theres no getting past that now
Excuses that you have made
Have worn so thin and I see through them
So we have to start with your failures
If we can even start at all