Evoken, Curse The Sunrise

Once again, this odious sunlight falls upon my face As I awaken to the sun's uncaring glance Must I suffer through this endless procession of bleakest hours
Sinking deeper beneath the weight of depression Faces loom just beyond my vision
Empty eyes full of contempt and fear Is this dream or reality
Behind the facade of alienation
A scream lingers - reflections too surreal I cannot fathom their pathetic, meaningless lives In the cold grasp of insanity powerless to cry out
Damned to exist in desolation and misery I curse the sunrise...