

Eyes Set To Kill, Come Home

You say it's okay,
To leave it alone.
But I want you to know this,
This case isn't closed.
Doors are open, the lights are left on.
And there's never a night I sleep,
When the dreams that I have,
If you never decided, decided to leave.
Decided, decided to leave.
There's never an ounce that I breathe,
Without thinkin' about,
Who I could have been, with you
There's never an ounce that I breathe,
Without thinkin' about,
Who I could have been if you didn't leave.
The phone's been patient to hear your call,
But you never touched the dial,
You never touch the dial, now I know.
There's someone I wish walked through these halls.
But you'll never take the chance to come home, to come home.
You say we can learn from this,
But I just don't know what to do without you anymore (anymore).
Your absence is taking it's toll on me,
What I should believe, I just can't believe.
There's never an ounce that I breathe,
Without thinking about
Who I could have been with you
There's never an ounce that I breathe,
Without thinking about,
Who I could have been if you didn't leave.
The Phone's been patient to hear your call,
But you never touched the dial,
You never touch the dial, now I know.
There's someone I wish walked through these halls.
But you'll never take the chance to come home, so come home.
You say it isn't my fault.
So I steer away,
I put off the pain,
For another day. (day)
You think you wouldn't be tough,
Eight years were never enough, a wait, for you.
If you never change,
I will be okay.
But I'll still stay up for you.
Just in case you make,
The time for the right move.
The phone's been patient to hear your call,
But you never touched the dial,
You never touch the dial now I know.
There's someone I wish walked through these halls.
But you'll never take the chance to come home, so come home.
There's someone I wish walked through these halls.
But you never touched the dial,
You'll never touch the dial.
And now I know.
The phones been patient to hear your call.
But you never take the chance to come home.
And you'll never take the chance to come home,
....Just come home.