

Eyes Upon Separation, My Scarlet Season Turns

all that was green has withered to nothing a blackened sky suffocates me where is my rainbow?
where are my flowers?
the roses have all turned black my heart withers as the autumn leaves it's so much easier to watch them die (I want to watch you die) all that I know all that I love all that I long for you'll just kill me in the end my summer grows cold I try to resurrect your face with my breath I can taste the salt of my own tears I cup my hands in hopes to catch a drop of what remains I couldn't reach you tomorrow holds no hope the sun has set for good passion is a distant memory leave me to die leave me to die with the seasons
