

Fairweather, Motion Sickness

Ever feel like there's so much more to life
But you just have no clue how to reach it right now?
Sick of all the talk between friends
All the things that offend
Desire everything to be set straight but we can't go back in time
Please don't leave without saying goodbye to me
It's only me running after you 'cause you're everything I need
Sour spirit mixed with the autumn disposition
Never looking out farther than my own room I tell myself I'll forget you.
I know that's not true
I just hate to be around when things break down between us
And all the times we spent together.
All the nights we screamed.
I can't remember what it's like to feel alright.
I can't let go of what's killing me.
So this is my apology to you.
I hope you know I love you.
Let's put back together the world we built between us.
I'm sorry.
