

Farewell Flight, Cruel

When we were kids, we would always climb the tallest trees in town
We never thought about what would happen if we lost our footing on the 37th branch, and fell down
When we were kids, we would always like the cutest girls in town
We never thought about what would happen if we ended up with them, but they left us for a man w
I think both feelings are exactly the same as one another; especially when one considers that they (It's all the same in the end)
Well, now that we are grown, we can look back and laugh at just how dumb we always knew we were
But there is a nervousness in our voices, and its hard to miss
Now that we have shown a complete loss of faith in just how true we never knew we were, what wo
I think that we are exactly the same as when we were little kids, the only difference is that we all ha
Go ahead, and tear my heart apart
We're all alone in the end
