Fear Before The March Of Flames, Go Wash You

Today I watched the sunset in the East Turns out it was the sunrise (And I walked a path as I told a story)

(I watched you through your window) I watched the sky as the moon was left reflecting on the day I scared you away, so

If I can't have you I'll just close my eyes And pretend she is you.. Pretend you are mine I can see the world through your window And I sing to you every night from here

Today I prayed my plane would crash You'd hear the news And you'd think of me as much as I thought of you

And if you repeat my words You said them before, and I remember the sound I keep the lights off I know you're right here No matter what, you can't say no to me in my dreams

Your routine is so divine. I have it memorized As you walk to your window with your light on inside I know you'll never find me here As you admire the view Do you know how pretty you look with your hair down? I walk to the window admiring the view