

Feeder, Dry Acoustic

Trying hard to face another day
No more left to give, nothing left to break
Melting in the sun, breathing in the day
Falling into love and climbing out again

There's nowhere left to run
No more tears to cry
The river's running dry
There's no more left to give
Love has left me blind

Reaching out beneath a sea of pain
Riding on the waves of hope again
Chipping as the stone face cracks away
Crying out again as my bones break

There's nowhere left to run
No more tears to cry
The river's running dry
There's no more left to give
Love has left me blind

What if we could save ourselves from this
What if every minute lasts a year
Life is what you make of everything
Fate is like a rope around my neck

There's nowhere left to run
There's no more tears to cry
The river's running dry
There's no more left to give
Love has left me blind