

Figure Four, Reasons Why

My world was crashing down and I had lost all reason.
I turned from side to side looking for excuses to blame you.
I questioned all this.
Thought out my reasons.
Are you right or am I wrong.
I want it all laid out.
I want it all.
Without a chance to expect a thing.
Without a voice you said it so clear.
You made a mark that took me surprise.
My world in pieces and I stood beside myself when you put it all back.
Put things in perspective.
I finally see all of these things clear as day.
