

Fireworks, The Midnight Society

Well we sung these songs before the world could sing along,
Can't take the red off our hands.
And what you do is not what you say,
Cause you'll never take it all the way.
The first thing that they said,
was "You're in over your heads.
Just another novelty, yeah a book unread."
but we're not the walking dead.
I'm not sorry, please don't forgive me tonight.
Every night we spend alone, we'll never have to run
From where we wanna go, cause we'll never need anyone else.
We are all we'll ever need and we're without you.
You'll see.
Well we made this place a home the day that we were born.
We're on the walls and we're in the streets.
But, this place is anywhere. WE ARE EVERYWHERE.
and we'll take our time and we'll be alright.
Shake your heads while we tap our feet.
It's not enough to make you understand.
Every night we spend alone, we'll never have to run
From where we wanna go, cause we'll never need anyone else.
We are all we'll ever need and we're without you.
You'll see.
You try too hard for the simple things
That are never out of reach.
Grew up too fast, gave up on dreams, and you're stuck.
Keep on dreaming (and keep in mind)
Can't believing (they're dead inside)
This is what you get for giving up.
