

Fisher, A Different Kind

we never play kissy-face in front of strangers we never run to each other in slow motion no rolling around on the shore with sand between our toes but i guess this is a different kind of wonderful we're in love in the real world it's not what i thought it would be but i can't let this go a different kind of happiness doesn't get more real than this it's not what they said it'd be

i didn't see anything in you when we first met when i believed i would fall in love at first sight night after night we bared our souls over coffee now i know i love you

'cause we're in love in the real world it's not what i thought it would be
a different kind of blissfulness we can't get more real than this it's not what they said it would be but i can't let it go i never saw the fireworks the stars didn't fall from the sky but this is more beautiful than a quick flash i never saw a rainbow

the stars didn't fall from the sky
but this is more meaningful than a quick flash

it doesn't get more real than this
no i can't let it go
no i can't let it go
