Flesh Field, Overload

Searching for another sign, Something to make me believe that this time It's real. And that I'm not the only one who is bound.

Overload of memories. I can't break this wall that holds me back. I'm nothing in the world of lies, With no right to fantasize.

I took the life from your world.
Potent, unforgiving.
I took the knife from your hand
And placed it in your blackened heart.

I know now that I am falling Into another dream. I can hear the angels calling. I hear the children scream.