

Flyleaf, Supernatural (Acoustic)

Her headaches are constant, increasing in pain
With each passing day
She cant even manage to stand on her own
It's gotten so bad

Now, you think of saying there's no use in praying
And still, she bows her head so she can say
Thank you for just one more day

Supernatural patience graces her face
And her voice never raises
It's all because of a love, never let go of
Never let go of

He has every reason to throw up his fists
In the face of his God, who let his mother die
Through all the prayer and tears
She still passed in pain, anyway

Now, you think of saying there's no use in praying
And still, he bows his head so he can say
Thank you for ending her pain

Supernatural patience graces his face
And his voice never raises
It's all because of a love, never let go of
Never let go of

He is teaching me
What love really means

Supernatural patience graces his face
And his voice never raises
It's all because of a love, never let go of
Never let go of

Yes, it's supernatural patience, graces his face
And his voice never raises
It's all because of a love, never let go of
Never let go of

He is teaching me
What love really means