

Four Star Mary, Too Far Gone

we used to smile
but the Fates denied and wove our threads bare now i just stare and try to trick my self sometimes but we're too far gone
we're too far gone
you could wash me clean from your empty seas but a dark, cold, storm can be reborn
i try to trick myself sometimes
we're too far gone
i never thought i'd have this feeling (leave me standing one more time) cover my face and leave me blind (just leave me)
all of these moons' tides that pull me (pulling me under all these waves) under the waves to leave me dying
we're too far gone
