

Freddie Wadling, Walk

A man wakes up one morning on the beach
He cannot know his name
And so he repeats these words
All over and over again

Love, peace, happiness, eternity
All these walks with me

And so he remembers very well, what he's meant to be
All of these moments may be lost, if he cannot see

Love, peace, happiness, eternity
All these walks with me
Talk about love, peace, happiness, eternity
All these walks with me

Love, peace, happiness, eternity
All these walks with me
Talk about love, peace, happiness, eternity
All these walks with you
