

Funker Vogt, Alone

In some days you'll be alone
Have to manage all on your own
It's the time when your parents are dead your friends are done and you feel upset

The days are grey and the nights are dark
So everytime you will need a spark
Without a spark you have no chance
It's too dark to see the fence

This was the time of a change in your life
The ocean is deep but you are still alive
Stand up and think about it
There was more time than you need

Hope is the name of the spark on your way
There is no one who asks, who asks you to stay
The way from the spark the flame is so long
This is the right way, not the wrong.

At the end of of the way you have found what you search
You have managed your life with no need of a church
The days are bright and you can see
Until you reach to the end of your fight

This was the time of a change in your life
The ocean is deep but you are still alive
Stand up and think about it
There was more time than you need
