

Gardens Of Gehenna, The Anatomy Of Melancholy

[lyrics by Birgit Lages]

you are not there anymore
where you used to be but you are wherever I am here in my heart

there's no more love
there's no belief in heaven above

here in my mind
there's sorrow and pain here is my life
poor and in vain

from a distance I hear voices words that I remember well spoken in another world a million light years back in time there's an echo of emotions lived through in another life a dimension long forgotten maybe in another me a look in my eyes tells you about hidden secrets the blood on my hands shows where I've been the words I don't speak run from darkest desires the scars on my soul talk of what I've seen from a dark and bitter silence shadows rise so grey and cold and long before the time was born those dark, forbidden things were old

you are not there anymore
where you used to be
but you are wherever I am