

Gary Barlow, Nothing Feels The Same

You took our love and tore it apart, shattered each and every corner of our hearts, walked away,
only to find,
the path that we had taken,
pointed back in time,

With open arms, we started again, never knowing every day what lied ahead, taking the time, the time to rediscover, all that brought the two of us together,

So tell me why,
nothing feels the same,
nothing feels the same,
as it did back then,
I'm asking why,
nothing feels the same,
why's it all like a dream you can't remember,
like a hope you can't surrender,
tell me why,
nothing feels the same,
nothing feels the same,
whoa oh oh,

We figured all we had was worth a try, we looked for words all day and talked all night, face to face, all our questions answered, reading in what we'd always just took for granted,

Now it's hard to see, the days when love was natural, it's so hard to see,
the way we're both refusing now,
to ask the question why,

Nothing feels the same,
nothing feels the same,
as it did back then,
I'm asking why,
nothing feels the same,
why's it all like a dream you can't remember,
like a hope you can't surrender,
tell me why,
nothing feels the same,
nothing feels the same,
whoa,

It seems impossible,
to be trying to solve this puzzle in a day,
whoa,
our fight has just begun,
and I'll be fighting baby, fighting till the end, until I find the answer why,

Nothing feels the same,
nothing feels the same,
as it did back then,
I'm asking why,
nothing feels the same,
why's it all like a dream you can't remember,
like a hope you can't surrender,
tell me why,

nothing feels the same.....
(fade out)