

Gary Moore, Teenage Idol

He never did much good when he went to school.
Too many teachers, there were too many rules.
A dirty faced kid, he was never outta trouble.
His Mum and Papa told him better get out on the double.
But when he heard that music on the radio
He knew one day he was gonna be a teenage idol.

He quit his job in the factory.
He was tired of makin' peanuts, so he jumped out of the tree.
He couldn't wait another day to get out of that place.
He punched the clock, and he broke its face.
But when he heard that guitar on the radio,
he knew one day he was gonna be a teenage idol.
Teenage idol.

He's a teenage idol
He knows how to rock and roll.
A teenage idol
He's way out of control.

He dumped his chick and he sold his car.
He bought himself a hot guitar.
He joined a band and they cut some tracks.
He hit the road and he's never looked back. Oh, no.
And now they're playing all his records on the radio.
And everybody knows, he's gonna be a teenage idol.

He's a teenage idol
He knows how to rock and roll.
A teenage idol
He's way out of control.
He's just a teenage idol
He knows how to rock and roll.
He's a teenage idol
He's way out of control.

And now they're playing all his records on the radio.
Everybody knows that he's gonna be a teenage idol.
Teenage idol.

He's a teenage idol
He knows how to rock and roll.
He's just a teenage idol
He's way out of control.
He's a teenage idol
He knows how to rock and roll.
A teenage idol
He's way out of control.

We're talking about a teenage idol.
You know what I mean.
He might be in your town next week
So just look out.
Get those tickets while they're hot.
