

George Harrison, Lay His Head

I know that I seem strange to you sometimes
And who is it in here, you have often thought
But what can I tell you
That you don't know already?
Yes, even the times like this
Will roll away

But I love you (I love you)
I love you (I love you)
That's all that I ever really wanted

I know that it will work out all the same
And whoever it is in here can overcome the pain
A true friend's shoulder to lean on
I'll make it through
And over and over
I feel for you

But I love you (I love you)
I love you (I love you)
That's all that I ever really wanted

Oh yeah, you know that sometimes a man
He has nowhere to lay his head

But what can I tell you
That you don't know already?
Yes, even the worst time like this
Will blow away

But I love you (I love you)
I love you (I love you)
That's all that I ever really wanted

Oh yeah, you know that sometimes a man
He has nowhere to lay his head, nowhere, I said nowhere
Nowhere to lay his head

Oh what can I tell you
That you don't know already?
