

Girlyman, Hey Rose

It's like any other day, Rose
You won't lose a thing, and no one else will ever know
You're wondering how to go
You're worried it will show

Hey Rose, your heart grows with every opening
In time, you'll see why this is happening

The sky smells like water, and the air tastes like steel
If you were a storm, this is how you would feel
Still and dark all night
With great flashes of light

Oh, it's not just me, Rose
There's nothing I can see that you don't already know
The light is kind of rough
But I could turn it off

Hey Rose, your world grows with every opportunity
Take this while you can, kiss me

Hey Rose, your love grows with every opening
In time, you'll see why this is happening

Hey Rose, your will grows with every opportunity
Take this while you can, kiss me
