

Grizzly Bear, While You Wait For Others

While you wait for the others to make it all worthwhile all your useless pretensions are weighing on my time you could beg for forgiveness as long as you like
or just wait out the evening
and always ask me why yes youll only leave me dry so ill ask you kindly to make your way and what was there

the perfect glare
we all fall through

while you wait on the answers that ill pretend to find keeping up with emotions still occupies our time you could hope for substance
as long as you like
or just wait out the evening
and always ask me why
yes youll always ask me why ill ask you kindly to make your way and what was left

the perfect glare
we all fall through
and all we want

and what was there
and what was there
and what wasnt there