Hank Thompson, After All The Things I've Done

I know I broke your heart and made you cry Once again I'm sorry so here am I Asking for forgiveness one more time After all the things I've done

Just another chance at loving you All the little things I never thought to do Can you just forgive me one more time After all the things I've done

I've headed down the road of sorrow lured by carefree fun There's only a dark tomorrow I'll be worth of things I've done If you can believe me just once more though I have drifted far from shore I'll try to untangle the web I spun after all the things I've done I've headed down the road...
