

Haylie Duff, Enchanted

I broke my crown while kissing little flowers
I floated up the stairs and fell through the tower

You drew the sparkle back into my eyes with your colored pencil Tracing the years of my hunger like a plastic stencil

I'm still enchanted
You're still implanted in me
I'm still enchanted

The clouds carressed my sky and smoke dried my tears up My viens are sweetly singing while blood drains from my cup

I blink my eyes and I am so so enchanted There's so much beauty that we take for granted

I'm still enchanted
You're still implanted in me
I'm still enchanted

( repeat chorus after guitar solo)