

Heartless Bastards, Early In The Morning

Early in the morning I woke up out of bed
All my thoughts come running back, running through my head
Of how you want to debate everything you hear
And I just want to go on escaping from my fears

I don't want to follow in a path that makes me hollow
I've been living underground trying to get my spirits up
There's more than one direction to get to the same end
We don't have to agree, we don't have to agree

Since you know it all why don't you cure a disease
You're hurting my ears with your endless speech
You act like you're sophisticated as you're under the arches
You're sitting down as everyone marches
