Heatmiser, Everybody Has It

They stop at the light She painted her lips white Saying it's green and let's go Well it happened at least I told the truth one time Cos I don't need some line Supposed to appease me I'm so sick of that When you echo back, and you're alright Everybody has it Everybody has it Everybody has it It's all right Look around, take a look around you Everybody has it Everybody has it Everybody has it You're all right He knows what he's got Some must think(?) Far from what he's not When everyone's drinking Which is most of the time Red is the color

That she dreams about you Every night and makes her cry Everybody has it Everybody has it Everybody has it So don't cry Look around, take a look around you Everybody has it Everybody has it Everybody has it It's all right Look around, take a look around you, Everybody has it and everybody has it And everybody has it You're so bright I looked around and I looked around And oh you're so right, oh you're so right Oh you're so right You're so bright Looked around and I looked around And oh you're so right, oh you're so right Oh you're so right You're so bright