

Hedley, Narcissist

The has-been high school hero
He's first in line in his own mind
And doesn't care about the rest

A handsome half-wit zero
He'll be your friend until the end
If you're the coolest and the best

He falls in love with his reflection in the glass
He can't resist who's staring back

He makes a case that all you've ever needed is a pretty face
But the bottom line about it is a never-was is all he'll ever be
He can't resist the paranoid delusions of a narcissist
It doesn't matter anyway cause he's a self fulfilling prophecy of make believe.

She's a suburban princess
She's had it all since she was small
And sucking on a silver spoon

Another gold card purchase
This daddy's girl thinks the whole world revolves around her like the moon
Each day's a film premiere where all the boys will stare
She pretends she doesn't care

She makes a case that all you've ever needed is a pretty face.
But the bottom line about it is a never-was is all she'll ever be.
She can't resist the paranoid delusions of a narcissist
It doesn't matter anyway cause she's a self fulfilling prophecy of make believe.
Of make believe, of make believe.

And on the day he met her
The high pretension of their love connection all but sealed the deal
Happily ever after
Who Better for each other than another candidate
To make a case that all you've ever needed is a pretty face
But the bottom line about it is a never-was is all they'll ever be
They can't resist the paranoid delusions of a narcissist
But they're together anyway and share their self obsessed reality

We can't resist the paranoid delusions of a narcissist
It doesn't matter anyway cause we're a self fulfilling prophecy of make believe
Of make believe, of make believe
Of make believe
