

Henry Rollins, Rejection

I had it wrong for so long in my head
I was walking around like I was dead
All the time my mind was stuck on you
I crawled while you stalled
I was a fool to think we were involved
I guess I needed to believe it so bad
Rejection never felt so good
All the things unclear are now
so well understood
At first I didn't see it as kind
But you did me a favor
when you left me behind
You might not believe it but it's true
It's all the things you never said that told me all about you
It's things you try to conceal that get revealed
I had to get it wrong before I got it right
I'm not the kind of argue,
I'm not the kind to fight
By the time I got to the truth
I had reached the end
Now I see how you are Now I see how it is
Now I see what you do
I watch them line up
I watch them fall down
One after one
I see your smile grow and grow
I think to myself
It could've been me
Now I'm alone and I'm burning
I'm hurting like hell but I'm learning
The scars will take me far like they always do
Somehow I'm alright I do believe that I'm alright
